"Directions"

If you are a woman you will understand exactly what I am writing about. If you are a man it will probably sound like a foreign language.

Women give directions in a very explicit way. Although some may do it differently I find for the most part we just give it plain and simple. And I might add, we are not afraid to ask directions! Already I can hear the men who may read this saying, "A real man knows where he's going." Of course he may not tell you he has a GPS in his car or truck. Don't get me wrong I think they are a wonderful tool to use and I will admit it makes it easier for both men and women. I have used one on occasion but that little calm voice seems to have a personality all its own when you don't turn where it says and gets all confused and keeps saying "rerouting, rerouting." Heaven forbid if you have to turn into a rest area for a bathroom break or pull into a fast food place and you're trying to give your order over one of those little speakers and this little voice is still saying, "rerouting, rerouting."

Now if you don't own a GPS then just ask a woman she will give it to you straight. Say for instance I want to know where the grocery store is, so I ask a woman, "Hello there, I'm new in town and I need to find the closest grocery store can you give me directions?" She says, "Sure honey, (that's the way we talk in the south, everybody is either sugar, or honey). Gotta watch who you say it to though as sometimes it can be inappropriate with the male gender, and especially if you are the Pastor's wife! Anyway, back to the directions. "Sure honey, Take this road till you reach the corner where the drugstore is, turn right and go over the railroad tracks, then you'll see a billboard advertising the best chocolate you ever put in your mouth, keep going for about a mile or so and you'll see Sam's Bait and Tackle, can't miss that one it has a big ole' worm hanging from a big ole' fishin' pole, then scoot on down the road apiece and there's the grocery store."

Now a man would tell you, "Take state road 59 two miles, turn right on Hwy 37, go another 4 miles till you reach Magnolia Avenue then turn left and go another mile till you reach Peach Street and swing a hard right, if you don't you might miss Peach and end up on Apricot then you've gone too far and need to back up about 50 feet and swing right again only harder this time to get back to Peach and go to the light and take a right and there's the Post office, Patsy works there and she can tell you how to get to the grocery store! Oh, and if you would, tell her Buck says Hey!"

I hope you enjoyed this article on directions. It was written to poke a little fun at the differences between men and women, but it also has a deeper thought in mind, and that is, "Do you really know where you are going after you die?" There is no manmade GPS or roadmap that can show you, only God's word.

You'll be glad to know that God doesn't give directions like the ones I just wrote about, He makes salvation so clear and easy anyone can understand it.

You are a sinner, you need forgiveness. Jesus died for your sins, and three days later arose from the dead. Pray and ask Him to forgive you, turn from your sin(repent) and believe on the Lord Jesus and ask Him to come into your heart and save you. Make Jesus your personal Savior today.

Point to ponder- Life is short,
Death is sure,
Sin the curse,
Christ the cure!
